International Human Rights Day is observed every year on December 10th. It is a day to commemorate the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) by the United Nations General Assembly on December 10, 1948. The UDHR is a milestone document that proclaimed the inalienable rights that every person is entitled to as a human being, regardless of their race, color, religion, gender, language, or any other status.

The theme for International Human Rights Day changes every year and is usually focused on a particular issue related to human rights. The day serves as a reminder of the importance of human rights and the need to uphold them, protect them, and promote them for all people around the world.

This day is celebrated to raise awareness about human rights abuses and to call for action to address them. It is also an opportunity to celebrate the progress that has been made in protecting human rights and to acknowledge the work that still needs to be done to ensure that human rights are respected and upheld for everyone.
